Observers say prosecutors under Putin have targeted tycoons who fell out of favor with the Kremlin.

"Gusinsky ran up a lot of debts, he's no Boy Scout. But I don't think the importance of NTV has to rest on whether Gusinsky is a virtuous businessman or not," said Ellen Mickiewicz, director of Duke University's journalism school and author of a book on Russian television.

Some industry analysts say NTV's $700 million in annual advertising revenues are the real reason for the struggle. It is the only major media company whose advertising is not managed by the giant Video International, which is closely tied to Press Minister Mikhail Lesin, a Putin ally.

"We used to envy the guys over there, their freer atmosphere and the money," said Volodya, a cameraman at the staterun network RTR, who gave only his first name. "Now their guys come to us in the parking lot to ask about a job."

NTV's programming is increasingly acidic, particularly in its near-daily reports of prosecutors' raids on Media-Most's offices. NTV's "Turn Out the Light" portrays Kremlin aides as mafia hit men and marked the hospitalized Yeltsin's 70th birthday this week by offering him a vodka-soaked birthday cake.

"These emotional distortions come from one thing: We are being pressured. You make us hurt, we scream," said NTV general director Yevgeny Kiselyov.

Kiselyov paces the sagging floors of NTV's corridors, one ear glued to a cell phone, while lawyers whisper in his other ear. He and colleagues warn Putin is reverting to the methods of his KGB years.

"He is a man of the system. We represent an opposing system, and must be undermined," Shenderovich said.

But others note the struggle for control of Russia's leading networks — including the initial raids on Media-Most — began under Yeltsin.

"Television has become an integral part of an economy in which the most profitable investments are not in production but in elections. Elections are won not by presenting a superior platform, but by controlling national media," Yulia Latynina, who recently moved her investigative reporting program from NTV to state-controlled ORT, wrote this week.

NTV once helped demonstrate that theory: In 1996, Gusinsky joined other media executives in backing Yeltsin's bid for re-election against a popular communist candidate. Gusinsky has since called that a huge mistake.

Meanwhile, Media-Most needs money. Prosecutors say it is more than $800 million in debt. Some paychecks are being delayed.

Prosecutors, tax authorities and creditors have accused Media-Most of a slew of financial sins in recent months:

- Last June, Gusinsky was arrested briefly and charged with defrauding the state in the privatization of a St. Petersburg television station. The charges were dropped after he signed a secret deal to turn over Media-Most to Gazprom Gusinsky was to receive cash, a debt write-off and freedom from prosecution. Gusinsky refused to honor the deal, saying he signed under duress
- Prosecutors then charged Gusinsky with overstating his assets in 1996 to receive a $262 million loan from Credit Suisse First Boston, guaranteed by Gazprom. Prosecutors say Media-Most was bankrupt at the time. Gusinsky, who denies wrongdoing, was arrested on those charges in Spain in December.

Russia media battle dredges up f

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW - When they strode across Red Square for a chance to speak their minds directly to President Vladimir Putin, the top journalists from Russia's largest private television station looked ready to take on the world.

When NTV's stars emerged nearly five hours later, their eves were drained of fire, their shoulders taut from the heated exchange. Their steely debate partner had called their boss a thief and shrugged off concerns that prosecutors were trying to get them off the air.

Two other guests were at that Kremlin meeting Monday: Russia's top prosecutor, who is trying to put NTV founder Vladi-mir Gusinsky behind bars for fraud, and the man leading the drive by the gas monopoly Gazprom to claim control of NTV because it can't pay its debts.

"To shut down a television station, one doesn't need to arrest someone. One can use financial management ... It can be like a calm death, and therefore, it's not murder," said NTV satirist Viktor Shenderovich, one of the journalists who met with Putin.

Determining just what the battle over NTV is all about is complex. Is Putin waging a war on media freedom? Or is he trying to root out the "oligarchs" who made fortunes in the 1990s, using Kremlin ties to buy up lucrative state property at knockdown prices? Or is it a fight for NTV's juicy share of the Russian advertising market?

NTV, short for Independent Television, has been a vigorous critic of the Kremlin's two wars in Chechnya and alleged corruption since its launch in 1994. NTV says its struggle for survival reflects an authoritarian drive to stifle dissent.

U.S. and European officials have rallied behind the nex work, and CNN founder Ted Turner and financier George Soros have expressed interest it survives. During her last days in office, former Secretary of State Madeleine Albright accused Putin's government of to undermine the "trying media.'

Yet NTV's struggle has raised relatively little protest among Russian citizens. They value its professional coverage, but largely back Putin's pledges to restore order and have little pity for Gusinsky.

Gusinsky is sequestered in his Spanish villa under house arrest while Russia clamors for his extradition.

Gusinsky and Russia's other "oligarchs" have claimed it was in buying a stake to ensure that impossible to do business in the NTV's $700 million in annual

Full Investigation Initiated: 04/13/2016

Details:

The United States Attorney's Office District of Columbia (UAO-DC) and the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) have requested assistance in the homicide investigation of Mikhail Lesin, former Russian political figure, media executive, and an adviser to Vladimir Putin, the President of Russia.

On Thursday, November 5, 2015, at approximately 11:32a.m., Lesin, with DOB: 07/11/1958, was found dead inside his hotel room, the Dupont Circle Hotel located at 1500 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W. After an autopsy was performed, a Deputy Medical Examiner ruled that the cause of Lesin's death was blunt force trauma.

By way of background, on Monday afternoon, November 2, 2015, Lesin checked into the Four Seasons Hotel at 2800 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. On Tuesday, November 3, 2015, Lesin was expected to attend a dinner and fundraiser honoring fundraiser was organized by the Woodrow Wilson Center's Kennan Institute, which works to build ties between Russia and the West. Lesin, however, failed to appear at the dinner and fundraiser.

b6 -2 b7C -2

In the early morning hours of Wednesday, November 4, 2015, Lesin, who had been consuming excessive amounts of alcohol, left with Four Seasons Hotel without checking out, and he checked into the Dupont Circle Hotel. The next morning, Thursday, November 5, 2015, at approximately 11:32 a.m., Lesin was found dead inside his hotel room. After an autopsy was performed, a Deputy Medical Examiner ruled that the cause of Lesin's death was blunt force injuries to his head. The Examiner found that contributing causes to Lesin's death were blunt force injuries of the neck, torso, upper extremities, and lower extremities. The Examiner also ruled that the manner of Lesin's death was "undetermined."

The USAO-DC and MPD are seeking the assistance of the FBI in the investigation into Lesin's death. Specifically, they would like to have a forensic examination done of surveillance footage from the Dupont Circle Hotel by the FBI's Forensic Audio, Video and Image Analysis Unit (FAVIAU). A lead will be set under a separate cover.

In April 2016, AUSA Deputy Chief of the USAO-DC b6 -1,3  Homicide Unit, contacted SA and requested a preliminary review of the Lesin investigation. SA began assisting AUSA who was assigned the captioned case matter for the USAO.
On July 22, 2016, SA assisted the USAO-DC and MPD with seeking a forensic examination of the surveillance footage from the Dupont Circle Hotel by the FBI's Forensic Audio, Video and Image Analysis Unit (FAVIAU). It was requested that FAVIAU confirm video authenticity, enhance footage with time stamps provided, and provide video still images of Lesin's head area.
On July 27, 2016, SA and AUSA along with MPD, met with Dr. Roger Mitchell Jr., Chief Medical Examiner, Office of the Chief Medical Examiner - District of Columbia, to discuss the case and autopsy results.  b6 -1,3 b7C -1,3
On September 13, 2016, SA AUSA MPD, and the USAO's Chief of the Homicide Unit, met again with Dr. Mitchell to discuss the investigative findings.

Lesin's manner of death was originally ruled undetermined by the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner. The investigation has now revealed that Lesin's manner of death was accidental with acute ethanol intoxication as a contributory cause of death. The investigation also revealed that there was no evidence to indicate that Lesin died as a result of homicide or criminal conduct by a third party.

On October 28, 2016, the USAO and MPD released a statement to the press/media stating the investigative findings. Attached hereto find the pres release.

Investigation Into the Death of Mikhail Lesin Has Closed; Manner of Death Determined an Accident

WASHINGTON - The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) and the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia, with assistance from the FBI, have concluded a comprehensive investigation into the death last year of Mikhail Lesin, a Russian political figure, media executive, and adviser to Vladimir Putin, the President of Russia. As a result of the almost year-long investigation, the Chief Medical Examiner of the District of Columbia has amended Mr. Lesin's manner of death from "undetermined" to "accident" with acute ethanol intoxication as a contributory cause of death. The investigation has now been closed.

Based on evidence gathered during the investigation, Mr. Lesin, 57, entered his room at the Dupont Circle Hotel for the final time at about 10:48 a.m., on Wednesday, November 4, 2015, after days of excessive consumption of alcohol. Based on the evidence, including video footage and witness interviews, Mr. Lesin entered his hotel room on the morning of Wednesday, November 4, 2015, after days of excessive consumption of alcohol and sustained the injuries that resulted in his death while alone in his hotel room. He was found dead late on Thursday morning, November 5, 2015.

After review of the video footage and new evidence developed from the investigation, the Chief Medical Examiner has determined that Mr. Lesin died as a result of blunt force injuries to his head, with contributing causes being blunt force injuries of the neck, torso, upper extremities, and lower extremities, which were induced by falls, with acute ethanol intoxication.

Hampshire Avenue, N.W. After an autopsy was performed, the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner initially ruled that the cause of Lesin's death was undetermined due to blunt force trauma. At the conclusion of an extensive investigation, an amended report was delivered by the Office of the Medical Examiner in September 2016 ruling Lesin's manner of death accidental with acute ethanol intoxication as a contributory cause of death. The investigation revealed that there was no evidence to indicate that Lesin died as a result of homicide or criminal conduct by a third party.
